Breast and Melanoma Surgeon, Sweden

Are you looking for an opportunity to develop further within specialised cancer surgery while working in a multidisciplinary and academically active environment?

We are currently recruiting a Specialist in General Surgery with experience and a strong professional interest in breast and melanoma surgery for a permanent position at a major university hospital in southwestern Sweden.

The position offers the opportunity to combine specialised clinical work with multidisciplinary cancer care, professional development, teaching and research in a highly specialised hospital environment.

About the position:
Your primary focus will be the care and surgical treatment of patients with breast cancer and malignant melanoma.

The role includes both outpatient care and day surgery, and you will be involved in the assessment, treatment and follow-up of patients.

The work is characterised by close multidisciplinary and multiprofessional collaboration, where surgeons work together with other specialists and healthcare professionals throughout the patient's treatment pathway.

Most of the work is carried out during daytime hours. Depending on your individual competence and previous experience, participation in general surgical on-call duties may also be included.

Breast and melanoma surgery:
The position is particularly suited to a general surgeon who already has clinical experience within breast surgery, melanoma surgery or related oncological surgery and wishes to continue developing within this field.

You will work with patients with breast cancer and malignant melanoma in a specialised surgical environment that combines clinical care with continuous development.

The broader surgical organisation also includes areas such as upper gastrointestinal surgery, endocrine and sarcoma surgery, as well as acute and trauma surgery.

A university hospital environment:
The hospital offers an environment where specialised healthcare, education, clinical development and research are closely connected.

The breast and melanoma surgery field is research-intensive, and teaching and continuous development are natural parts of the position.

For a surgeon who wants to combine clinical expertise with continued academic and professional development, this provides an opportunity to build a long-term career within a large Swedish university hospital.

Who are we looking for?
We are looking for a Specialist in General Surgery who has a particular interest and relevant experience in breast and melanoma surgery.

You enjoy working in a multidisciplinary setting and are comfortable taking responsibility while contributing to the continued development of the department.

You value close collaboration with colleagues from different professions and specialties and have a patient-centred approach to your work.

We are looking for a candidate who:
Holds an EU-recognised specialist qualification in General Surgery
Has relevant clinical experience
Has experience and a strong professional interest in breast surgery, melanoma surgery and/or related oncological surgery
Is comfortable managing patients throughout different stages of the surgical care pathway
Enjoys working in multidisciplinary and multiprofessional teams
Has a strong sense of responsibility and an interest in clinical development
Has good communication and collaboration skills
Has good English language skills
Is strongly motivated to learn Swedish and establish a long-term career in Sweden
For candidates who do not yet speak Swedish, language training is provided as part of the recruitment process.

What the hospital offers?
You will have the opportunity to:
Work within specialised breast and melanoma surgery
Develop your competence within surgical cancer care
Work with both outpatient consultations and surgical treatment
Become part of an established multidisciplinary cancer care environment
Participate in teaching and continuous clinical development
Work in a research-intensive university hospital environment
Collaborate with experienced specialists across different medical and surgical disciplines

Continue developing both clinically and academically

We offer:
Ongoing support from a recruiter before, during, and after your employment
Assistance with obtaining Swedish authorization and specialist approvals
Help with relocation, accommodation, and support for your family if needed
Access to a free language course with a private tutor via Teams/Skype.

To Apply:
Please send your CV mentioning reference DM-409 at info@phd-jobs.net
Tel.: +40 765 734 800
HR Partner, Vitaly Pryadka
Web: https://www.phd-jobs.net