Consultant in Gastroenterology, Norway

We are recruiting a consultant in gastroenterology for a permanent, full-time position at an acute-care hospital in Eastern Norway.

You will join an established gastroenterology department providing outpatient consultations, day treatments and inpatient care. The position offers the opportunity to work with a broad range of gastrointestinal conditions while collaborating closely with colleagues across internal medicine.

Clinical activities include:
Outpatient assessment, diagnosis and follow-up of patients with gastrointestinal conditions
Day treatments and planned investigations
Care for hospitalised patients, with a shared inpatient ward for gastroenterology and infectious diseases
Diagnostic and therapeutic endoscopy
Collaboration with other internal medicine specialties and surgical departments
The department is part of a broader internal medicine environment, offering opportunities for interdisciplinary collaboration and professional development.

Your responsibilities will include:
Diagnosis, treatment and follow-up of patients with gastrointestinal diseases
Clinical work in outpatient services, the day unit and inpatient care
Participation in endoscopic procedures according to your experience and qualifications
Supervision and guidance of doctors in specialist training
Contributing to clinical teaching, quality improvement and professional development
The position normally includes participation in the general internal medicine on-call rota, currently shared among 15 doctors. It is also possible to arrange a position without on-call duties.

Qualifications:
Medical licence and specialist qualification in gastroenterology from an EU/EEA country
Broad clinical experience in gastroenterology
Good english communication skills and willingness to learn Norwegian
We are looking for a colleague who works independently, communicates well and enjoys collaborating with other healthcare professionals.

We offer:
A permanent, full-time position at an established acute-care hospital
Varied clinical work in a well-established gastroenterology department
Flexible on-call arrangements, including the possibility of a position without on-call duties
A supportive multidisciplinary team with experienced colleagues
Opportunities for professional development, teaching and continued learning
Salary and employment conditions in accordance with applicable agreements
Good public-sector pension benefits and employee welfare schemes
Support throughout the recruitment and relocation process
