Rheumatologist, Sweden

We are currently seeking a dedicated and ambitious Specialist or Consultant Rheumatologist to join a well-established rheumatology department within the Swedish healthcare system.

About the Position:
You will become part of an experienced team of rheumatology specialists providing high-quality care to a large outpatient population. The department also offers infusion treatments through a dedicated day-care unit and has access to inpatient care when required.

The clinic promotes a collaborative approach to patient care, with regular case discussions and close cooperation with colleagues from other medical specialties. Multidisciplinary teamwork is an integral part of the department's daily practice, ensuring the best possible outcomes for patients with complex rheumatic diseases.

You will work alongside skilled nurses, physiotherapists, occupational therapists, and counsellors in a well-organized rheumatology team where knowledge sharing and professional development are highly valued.

You will join a modern acute-care hospital with approximately 2,600 employees, combining the resources and expertise of a larger hospital with the collaborative atmosphere and accessibility often associated with smaller organizations.

Responsibilities:
Diagnose and treat patients with rheumatological diseases
Conduct outpatient consultations and follow-up visits
Participate in infusion treatment services
Collaborate closely with multidisciplinary healthcare teams
Contribute to the supervision and mentoring of junior doctors

Qualifications:
Medical degree and specialist certification in Rheumatology
Specialist qualification obtained and recognized within an EU member state
Good command of English, both spoken and written
Strong professional commitment and ability to work collaboratively within a multidisciplinary team
Interest in providing patient-centred, high-quality care

Language Requirements:
No Swedish language skills are required when applying.

However, candidates must be motivated to learn Swedish and reach C1 level proficiency before starting clinical work independently. We support this process through our comprehensive language programme and language school, providing structured training and guidance throughout the learning journey.

We Offer:
Permanent full-time employment
A structured introduction to the Swedish healthcare system
Professional relocation support
Comprehensive Swedish language training through our language school
A collaborative and supportive working environment
Opportunities for continuous professional development
Work-life balance and excellent living conditions in Sweden
