

Specialist ophthalmology, Sweden/Finland

Switch to island time on the pearl in the middle of the Baltic Sea! Enjoy fresh sea air and the small scale of the archipelago in a safe environment. Go from island to island. Stop when you see an enticing sign on the side of the road – it could lead you to a small farm bakery, craft stall, art exhibition or farm.

Does that sound enticing? The hospital on the island is looking for a specialist in ophthalmology. Is this you?

The hospital in question is situated on an Island between Finland and Sweden. Although the island is Finnish, the language spoken is Swedish. It has approximately 30.000 inhabitants (and growing) but due to the geographical location – they need to have a fully equipped emergency hospital that covers everything from obstetrics/gynaecology, surgery, ENT, ophthalmology, Internal medicine with all its subspecialties, orthopaedics, etc.

For the ophthalmology department a skilled doctor is needed. We are looking for a specialist within the discipline who is self-sufficient within a broad spectrum of examinations and interventions. The working conditions are very good, both in terms of working hours, colleagues, salary, and other important benefits.

The hospital offers:

A stimulating and friendly working environment in a modern, although smaller setting

Modern equipment

Good cooperation with the department regarding further education, courses and congresses

Attractive conditions and regulated working hours that will provide time for family and hobbies

If you are moving with your family, schools are among the best in the Nordic countries and unemployment is low. We have recently recruited another doctor from Europe to this hospital, and he and his family are thriving after their relocation.
